GARDEN APRON SUITABLE FOR BOTH MARY AND MAUD

Mary's garden seems to be growing upon her fascinating little apron. Even if one's name happened to be Maud, one would hardly take off this fetching little article after visiting a garden. One would want to keep it in order to put balls of yarn and socks for soldiers into those perfectly adorable flower-pot pockets.

HOW TO CHOOSE A HUSBAND

By DOROTHY DIX, The World's Highest Paid Woman Writer

A group of young women ask my advice about choosing a husband and desire to know what type of man is most desirable to marry.

Inasmuch as custom does not permit a woman to pick out the man she fancies and pop the question to him, the phrase, "choosing a husband" is a paradox in itself and is full of bitter irony.

All that the average woman can do in marrying is to follow the old-fashioned rule that used to be given to children for good manners—take what is set before you and ask no questions. And that is particularly true of these war times when husbands become more and more of a rarity and a luxury.

Still, if woman can't propose, she has at least the veto power in matrimony. She can always say "no" and before she decides to bestow her heart and hand upon a man she should consider well the qualities he possesses.

My first piece of advice is, don't choose a man for a husband just because he is handsome. Beauty is a woman's prerogative, and when a man possesses it he is peaching on her pretenses. Your handsome husband will monopolize the mirror, appropriate the clothes money for his own behoof and benefit, and be so absorbed in contemplating his own good looks that he will never have time to notice yours.

It is better to be admired than it is to be admired, and the woman who desires to have a nice, comfortable, calm voyage across the sea of wedlock should never pick out a pilot because of his good profile or ambrosial curls.

My second piece of advice is not to choose a man because he is fascinating. The arts that hypnotized you will be equally potent with other women. The fascinating man is a born sportsman. With him the chase is everything. It's the bird on the wing that he is eternally after, and as soon as he has brought it down he loses interest in it. No barnyard fence can be built high or strong enough to keep him in.

Don't pick out a man for a husband because he makes love romantically. It gratifies a woman's aesthetic taste, but it shows too much experience. The man who has presence of mind enough to quote poetry, who knows just when and where to gently encircle the adored one with his arm and draw her to his manly bosom, has rehearsed the scene before. It is the man whose Adam's apple rises in his throat, and who blurs out any old thing when he proposes who means every word he says. Besides, matrimony puts an end to love making, and it is folly to marry a man because he was a star performer in a role in which he will never make another appearance.

Money Not Only Essential.
Don't choose a man for a husband just because of his money. You can't get happiness without money. Neither can you buy happiness with money. There's no satiety equal to that which wealth brings, and no people are so bored as those who have eaten and drunk their fill, and have come to the end of the things that money can buy and have nothing else.

Besides money is the most evanescent thing on earth. It is the will of the wisp of life, and a woman who has married for money and then lost it is a spectacle at which the gods must laugh.

Don't marry a man just because you love him. The most important thing is whether he loves you. A woman who loves her husband better than he does her is a doormat on which he treads. If he loves her better than she does him, she is the goddess whom he worships, and he spends his life trying to please her.

A too adoring wife wears a man with her affection, but no woman ever had enough love given her to satisfy her, and the more devotion a man lavishes upon her, the stronger the claim he establishes on her heart. After marriage a thousand things draw a woman to her husband, but a million things estrange him from her. Any good woman who marries a man who is kind to her will love him enough. Therefore, it is a wise girl who marries the man who loves her rather than the man she loves when she can't both love and be loved.

Don't Marry Genius.
Don't marry a man because he is brilliant. No genius is satisfied to scintillate on his own hearthstone, and his wife's heart must needs be torn with jealousy. Besides, the very qualities that make his achievements possible—the highly strung nervous organization, the sensitiveness to impression, the very vagaries of the artistic temperament—make him a trying person to live with. No woman should marry such a man unless she is willing to use her own happiness as fuel to feed the fires of his genius.

Don't choose a man who follows a public career unless you are willing to be just the fringe on the outside of his life instead of the whole fabric. A man picks out his life work long before he picks out his wife; he prepares himself for it by years of study and work; it is the thing by which he rises or falls in life, and a woman has no right to interfere with it.

Yet we continually see women who marry doctors, and who break up their husband's practice by their jealousy of his female patients, or women who marry actors and who writhen over every love scene on the stage between their husband and his leading lady, and the air is full of the lamentations of the wives of popular actors, men and actresses, that their husbands belong to the public instead of to them.

Success is always bought at a high price, and the wife of the successful man must pay her share, so if you want a husband who will sit across the radiator from you every evening, and who will never cost you a jealous pang, marry some commonplace fellow that no other woman wants.

Don't choose a foreigner for a husband unless you are willing to adopt his national point of view on women. A petted, coddled, admired, spoiled American girl who marries a man who has been brought up to believe that a woman's only use in the world is to bake bread and have babies, hasn't got the ghost of a show at happiness. Neither has the husband.

Choose Homely Husband.
In choosing a husband pick out a man who is homely rather than handsome, so shall your own beauty be adored. Choose one who will run after you rather than one who have chased down, so shall he be constant. Select one who will burn incense before you rather than expect you to burn it before him, so shall you always be worshipped. Pick out one who is prosperous rather than rich, so shall you have love to comfort you if fortune fails. Choose one who is intelligent rather than brilliant, so shall you have commonplace comfort in your home.

Above all, never marry a man who has not sympathy and tenderness. There comes times in every woman's life of sorrow and sickness, racked nerves and rended heart, and if she cannot then fall back upon a husband's tenderness that is as all-enfolding as the tenderness of God, she is poor indeed. If a man has that all else may be forgiven. If he lacks it, all other virtues are as nothing.

JUDGE A. R. HEYWOOD AND WIFE RETURN FROM CAMP

Judge Abbot R. Heywood, chairman of the city exemption board and Mrs. Heywood returned to Ogden Sunday after spending several days in the northwest. Judge and Mrs. Heywood left Ogden to visit their son, Captain John Heywood, at Camp Lewis, who expects orders for overseas duty immediately. While in the northwest, however, they took in the larger cities and enjoyed a few days of vacationing.

Judge Heywood this morning said that the officers at Camp Lewis were so occupied with their many duties at this time that he and his wife got only one opportunity of seeing their son.

The judge said that business conditions in the northwest have been livened immensely by the war because of the demand for lumber for shipbuilding and wood for other war materials. Old lumber camps have been opened up in nearly every part of the country and are humming with activity.

Judge Heywood was on the Columbia highway and declared it to be one of the finest roads it had ever been his pleasure to ride over. While on the trip, Judge and Mrs. Heywood visited Tacoma and Seattle, Wash.; Victoria and Vancouver, B. C., and Camp Lewis.

DR. W. J. BAKER IS CALLED TO SERVICE

Dr. W. J. Baker, who was some time ago commissioned a first lieutenant in the dental branch of the army medical corps, has been notified to put his affairs in order and be prepared to leave for camp to take up active service.

The Ogden dentist, a son of Dr. F. W. Baker, received a telegram Sunday from Surgeon General Gorgas, which stated that he would be called to active duty in about two weeks.

Lieut. Baker is associate member of the Ogden city draft board and city director of the Preparedness League of American Dentists, both of which positions he will resign.

WORKS HARD FOR BOYS IN CAMP

Miss Arline Scully, daughter of General Scully of Atlanta, Ga., has been doing considerable work with the camp welfare association at Washington. She feels it her duty to assist in every way in making the boys in the camps as comfortable as possible.

STYLE RUNS TO SIMPLE GOWNS

Analyze some of the most striking gowns of the day and they will be found to consist of a simple, elegant straight one-piece garment, gathered slightly below the inevitable broad belt.

Their distinguishing features are often produced by odd arrangements of a little gorgeous trimming with a handful of beads, unquely grouped, and added for good measure of style.

Facker Hadlock. She was married to Robert H. Beesley in Salt Lake, January 26, 1915. She is survived by her husband, father and one son, Lewis Robert, also by the following brothers and sisters: O. B. Hadlock, Sunset; Mrs. Mary L. Bowman, Kayaville; Mrs. Bessie Layton, Layton; Ethel, Josie, Lowell, Ruth and Afton Hadlock of Sunset. Mrs. Beesley was a student at the Weber academy and an active worker in the Latter Day Saints church. The funeral will be held Tuesday at 2 p. m. in the Clearfield meeting house with Bishop David Stoker officiating. The body may be viewed at the residence of Orlando Hadlock at Sunset Monday from 3 p. m. until 9 p. m. and Tuesday until the hour of funeral. Interment will be in Kayaville cemetery. Flowers left at Lindquist's by 11:30 a. m. Tuesday will be taken to the home.

BRYANT.—John James Bryant, a resident of Utah for the past thirty years passed away this morning at 3 o'clock at the family home, Cross street and Washington avenue. Mr. Bryant was born in South Carolina, January 18, 1877, and came to Utah with his mother thirty years ago. Leakage of the heart was the cause of death of which he had suffered for a number of years. His wife, Clara Davis Bryant and seven sons and two daughters survive; his mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. William Woodfield of North Ogden and two sisters also survive. Remains were taken to the Lindquist chapel and will lie in state at the mortuary tomorrow afternoon and Wednesday morning. For an hour before the funeral services which will be held Wednesday at 2:30 o'clock in the North Ogden meeting house, the body may be viewed at the Woodfield home.

It will leave here at 6:30 a. m., and arrive at Salt Lake at 7:30 a. m., and maintain the daily schedule thereafter until about September 1.

DANIELS COMMENDS A WATER TENDER

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Frank Bush, a chief water tender in the navy, has been commended by Secretary Daniels for extinguishing a fire which broke out in an engine room of a destroyer last June 11. In making this announcement today, the secretary said Bush's prompt and efficient action was believed to have prevented serious damage to the ship. Bush's home is at Vallejo, Cal.

SCHOOL BUILDINGS OF CITY ARE BEING INSPECTED

Members of the board of education of the city school system started an inspection of all of the buildings of the system at noon today, with a view to determining what improvements and changes must be made during the summer vacation time.

The board members first visited the Central Junior high school, where a rather extensive campaign of improvements is planned.

FRENCH PREMIER VISITS PERSHING

Inspects Newly Arrived Troops and Is Strongly Impressed by Perfect Training.

PARIS, June 23.—Premier Clemenceau visited the American battlefield today and inspected the American troops.

An important military conference was held during the afternoon. Among those present were M. Clemenceau, General Pershing, General Foch, who came especially for the occasion, Captain Tardieu, Major General MacAndrew and Generals Mordacq and West-gand.

Questions concerning Franco-American co-operation were discussed and the measures to be taken with the next months in concert were talked over. Complete agreement was reached on all points.

Inspects New Troops
The troops quartered where the inspection was held belong to a division which landed less than a week ago. They were presented to M. Clemenceau by General Pershing and Major General MacAndrew. The magnificent bearing of the men and their perfect training strongly impressed the premier, who chatted with them and realized their desire to get into the line as early as possible and their determination to win.

General Pershing hurriedly assembled the officers of the regiment in the cantonment when Premier Clemenceau arrived. The premier spoke a few words to the officers, expressive of the great confidence of France in the men from overseas and of thanks for the aid she was receiving from America at the decisive hour of the struggle for the liberty of the world.

Talks to Villagers
The premier then spoke to the villagers who had assembled when the news of his presence became known and mingled with the American soldiers who crowded around him. The premier explained to the people what America is doing in order to bring its greatest strength to the aid of the allies with the maximum rapidity. The mayor of the village made a brief speech in reply.

"All right," he said, "We can wait."

WRECK PROBE HAS BEEN ORDERED

Blame to Be Fixed for Disaster to Hagenbach-Wallace
Circus Train.

CHICAGO, June 24.—Two investigations have been ordered by official bodies into the cause of the wreck in which 85 employees of the Hagenbach-Wallace circus were killed and approximately 150 injured. The investigations will be made by the coroner and the Indiana public service commissions to fix the blame for the disaster.

Sixty-two bodies have been recovered and according to E. M. Ballard, general manager of the circus, twenty-three of the employees are still missing and are supposed to have been destroyed by the fire which consumed the wooden circus cars.

Victims Leave Hospital
CHICAGO, Ill., June 24.—Thirty-six of the injured were able to leave the hospitals in Gary today. Thirty-six still remain in the hospitals.
